—Children playing with matches in a barn at Warren last Sunday afternoon set fire to the structure, which was destroyed, and the firemen had a hard job to save adjoining property.

—There was a public sale of 96 Jersey cattle at Lisbon last Saturday and the proceeds amounted to $14,300. Cows sold as high as $560 and calves six months old brought $100 and $150. The animals were shipped to all parts of the country.

Bear of the agricultural extension department of the Ohio State university, who was one of the most interesting and instructive speakers at the school held in Canfield a few months since, has gone abroad with others to spend some time studying agriculture and experimentation in France, Holland and England.

The police could get no trace of the stolen garments until a few days since when they arrested Mrs. M. P. Peck, charging her with the crime. At first she denied the theft but later confessed and said that the plunder was in Youngstown. Officers went after it.

—Lecturers will be sent over the state by the Ohio Good Roads Federation. They will give instructions before county meetings on building, maintaining and using modern roads. Their work will be supplemented by literature showing the meaning to farmers, in dollars of good roads. The organization secured passage through the legislature of the Hudson and McGuire bills, which in a few years will make Ohio a model road state.

—Alliance Review: Howard Thomas had a horse and buggy stolen from the public square in Alliance, Saturday night. No trace of the thief or the rig could be found during the night. On Sunday evening a farmer living on the Harrisburg road, brought the stolen outfit to Alliance. The horse was found tied to a fence several miles from the city, and returned to Alliance after a vain effort to locate an owner. The horse gave evidence of having been over-driven.

An informal reception will take place the opening night and among those who will make addresses the following two days are H. B. Williams of Sandusky, E. D. Lyon of Cincinnati, V. S. Sackett of Mt. Cory, Miss Mary E. Downey of Columbus, Dr. F. E. Leonard of Oberlin, Prof. J. H. Dickinson of Wooster and Dr. S. D. Fess, president of Antioch college.

—Chagrin Falls Exponent: With the new appraisal figures of property in Chagrin Falls and vicinity is shown the lemon which is to be handed to "our country cousin" by Mr. Blaz of the city, even if the one-per cent tax limit should be realized without all the many strings now attached to it. But Gov. Harmon is right in hammering away for the minimum limit upon such values as we have had placed upon farm property in which this county is only a sample of the manner in which all the counties are to get theirs which is only an enormous robbery in spite of the one-per cent limit.

—The Warren Democrat says: Miss Beatrice Hurd, thirteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hurd of Southington, recently took the teachers' examination at Warren and received grades amounting to 82.9 which entitles her to a two years' certificate to teach school. On account of her youth it was not possible to issue the certificate however, Miss Hurd is a junior in the Southington high school. Hon. Newton Chalker of Akron offered a prize of $5 for the best report of the sermon of Rev. Reinhold to the school. Beatrice Hurd won this prize also, having made a remarkably correct report of the sermon.

Brain Leaks.

The sermon that everybody likes hasn't stirred up many people.

The world's greatest heroes are those who do the little things well.

One thing about sowing wild oats—there's never any shortage of seed.

A lot of men think that when they have given money they have given enough.

When a man has lived so long he has forgotten when he was a boy, it is time he quit.

A lot of men work themselves to death looking for an easy way of making a living.

We can forgive a man if he borrows a dollar and forgets to pay it back. We can forgive him if he backbites. We can forgive him if he cheats us in a trade. But as yet we haven't cultivated the Christian gift of forgiveness to the extent that we can forgive the man who borrowed a favorite book and returns it in a dilapidated condition.—Commoner.

HOW TO COOK HEALTHY LEGUMINOUS FOODS

OUR dinners often become more monotonous than they need be. If we are living in town we have a good quantity of vegetables at our very doors, such as carrots, turnips, onions, brussels sprouts, celery, parsnips and corn. These alone give us a different variety for each day in the week.

And when the stores are far away it is generally a simple matter to obtain most of the vegetables mentioned direct from some grower if one's own garden does not supply them.

I have chosen quite ordinary vegetables, but I want to show you that it is possible to prepare them so as to produce really appetizing dishes.

Wash and peel two pounds of Jerusalem artichokes, trimming them into neat oval shapes. Lay them in cold salted water, to which has been added the juice of half a lemon. Let them stand for one hour, then put into boiling salted water and boil until they are tender.

Drain thoroughly and keep them hot. Melt three heaping tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, add one chopped onion, fry it carefully for a few minutes, then add six ounces of washed rice and three cupsful of milk.

Boil them gently for about three-quarters of an hour, or until the rice is tender, but not broken, and has absorbed all the liquid.

Cook one large tomato until tender, rub it through a sieve; add it with two heaping tablespoons of grated cheese, to the rice, and stir for a few minutes over the fire. Arrange the rice in a neat border on a hot dish.

Place the artichokes in the center, and pour over them some tomato sauce. Sprinkle the artichokes with a little chopped parsley.

Globe Artichokes, Plain.

Trim the tops of two fresh artichokes and cut off the stalks evenly. Put them in cold water with a little salt and let them remain in this for two or three hours, then put them into plenty of slightly boiling water, and let them simmer gently for 50 or 60 minutes.

Take them up with a slice, drain them on a clean sieve, and place them on a hot dish. Serve either as a hot or cold dish with mayonnaise or vinaigrette sauce served from a sauceboat.

Browned Turnips. Six or eight small turnips, one and a half tablespoons of butter, half a teaspoonful of granulated sugar, salt and pepper. Peel the turnips and cut them in slices about a quarter of an inch thick.

Boil them in salted water for about 20 minutes until tender, but not broken. Drain them well.

Melt the butter; when it is hot put in the turnips and sugar and fry them carefully until they are nicely browned all over. Sprinkle them with pepper and salt, and serve them at once in a hot vegetable dish.

Leeks.

Leeks, besides being put into soups, make an excellent accompaniment to roast fowl.

Take six or eight well-blanching leeks—that is, having a large piece of white. Take white part, pare off top and outer shell, and wash as free from sand as possible, then lay them in a vegetable basket or on the bottom of a saucepan, and pour over boiling water, not quite covering them.

Steam slowly at side of fire, add pinch of salt. When tender, drain and serve on toast. They may be served with white sauce.

Frying Batter.

Four heaping tablespoons of flour, quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, quarter of a pint of tepid water, one tablespoonful of melted butter, white of one egg. Sift the flour and salt together, stir the water and melted butter smoothly into it.

Beat up the white of egg very stiffly and, quite at the last, stir it lightly into the batter. Trim off any loose leaves from the sprouts. Sprinkle them lightly with salt, pepper and vinegar. Have ready a pan of smoking hot fat, lift up one of the sprouts on a skimmer, dip it in the batter, drop it in the fat, and fry a pretty golden brown.

Lift it out with a skewer and drain well on paper. Pile them up on a hot dish and garnish with fried parsley. This is a capital way of using cold sprouts.

Celery a La Creme.

Two or more heads of celery, two small onions, a small bunch of parsley and herbs, milk, about two tablespoons of cream, a little lemon juice, salt and pepper, one tablespoonful of flour to half a pint of milk. Take the best parts of the celery, trim and wash carefully. Put in a pan of cold water, bring it to the boiling point, and boil for five minutes; then throw away the water and add instead enough milk to cover and celery. Put in the sliced onions and herbs, and let all simmer very gently until the celery is tender, if necessary adding more milk as it reduces. Lift out the sticks of celery, cut them into thin strips, roll each up in a neat little roll. Have ready some neat rounds of fried bread; place a roll of celery on each. Mix the flour smoothly with a little cold milk and add it to the milk in the pan, adding more milk or stock if there is not sufficient in it. Stir until it boils, season it with salt, pepper and lemon juice, and, lastly, add the cream. Pour this sauce over the celery, sprinkle with a little chopped parsley and serve very hot.

Ambiguous.

"Say, Ma, does God see everything we do?"

"Yes, my child."

"Even the little things around the house, Ma—in the hall and dining-room and all around?"

"Yes, my child, everywhere."

"After a moment's sympathetic contemplation in profound silence:"

"Gee, I wouldn't like to be Pa."

AFTER THE WEATHER MAN

The house of representatives has appointed a committee of seven members from various states to investigate the weather bureau of the Department of Agriculture. It is said that the farmers are complaining of the reports of the Weather Man as "faulty, inaccurate and otherwise objectionable." They even intimate that "wet" predictions are usually followed by dry weather and vice versa, and that the "fair" weather promised is apt to turn out stormy.—Washington News Item.

APPEALS TO THE PEOPLE

TAFT ASKS AID IN FIGHT FOR RECIPROCITY.

Now Believed Measure Will be Reported Without Recommendation by End of the Week.

Washington, May 31.—An all day hearing will be given by the senate finance committee on the Canadian reciprocity bill. By the end of the week, probably, but certainly by Monday, the measure will be reported without recommendation to the senate. Threats of friends of reciprocity to force an issue by moving to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill had the effect, at least of facilitating matters to this extent. Hope was expressed at the White House that the bill will emerge from the committee unamended.

The president in discussing the bill put the fight into the hands of the American people. He believes the great majority of them desire reciprocity and he is convinced that even those sincerely opposed to it will come to realize and appreciate its benefits after reciprocity has had a trial. There are 56 senators who will vote for the bill, if a vote is ever reached, sufficient to pass it. The balance are unalterably opposed to it in any form. Of the 56 who will vote for it, 20 are Republicans who will not vote for it if the farmers free list is attached and about five are Democrats who may vote for it without the free list but who will first vote to tack on the free list. The president appeals to all of the people to help him win the people's fight.

Cleveland Girl Swallows Chloroform in Front of Former Husband's Home at Fostoria.

Fostoria, O., May 31.—Miss Beatrice Copeland, a Cleveland divorcee, swallowed five or six ounces of chloroform in front of the home of her former husband, John Burke, after trying in vain to gain an entrance. She was found unconscious upon the street and taken to the hospital. Her condition is serious. Miss Copeland about 18 months ago came here and made a similar attempt after being unable to get to see Burke. She was carried into the house and cared for there until able to be moved. A divorce subsequently was secured and Burke recently was taken to Cleveland on charge of nonpayment of alimony, but was discharged. Miss Copeland claims to be a descendant of the British royal family and that her trouble is the natural result of her mesalliance.

RECEIVERSHIP THREAT WORRIES

Directors and Counsel of Tobacco Trust Contend High Court Has Probably Exceeded Its Powers.

New York, May 31.—It was developed at a meeting of some of the directors and counsel for the tobacco trust that the greatest source of worry to the officials of that combine in the adverse decision of the United States supreme court is the threat of that high tribunal that unless the trust, declared to be flagrantly in violation of the Sherman law, shall agree with the assent of the United States circuit court to a plan of lawful reorganization within six months a receiver will be appointed to take charge of the concern. As to the receivership threat, it is pointedly contended that the supreme court has quite probably exceeded its own powers.

OHIO LEGISLATURE CONVENES

Agreements Have Been Reached by Conference on Appropriation and Utilities Commission Bills.

Columbus, O., May 31.—Divided into two camps on adjournment, the legislature convened at ten o'clock this morning. Since adjournment is fixed by resolution at 4 p. m. Whether it is reached at this time depends on the outcome of the struggle between the two interests. Chances favor quieting some time tonight. Agreements have been reached by conference on the big appropriation bills and the utilities commission bill. Awaiting house concurrence in senate amendments are the Edwards county tax commission bill, the Crosser municipal initiative and referendum bill, the Kimble corrupt practices bill and other less important measures. Senate changes, weakening the Crosser bill, may be accepted as the only way to inaugurate the initiative and referendum. Amendments to the Kimble bill may be accepted. They are apparently intended to make it a felony to publish a newspaper, but the amendments are in such form that it is understood they can be vetoed by Governor Harmon without touching the vital features of the bill. It is feared that if the senate gets a chance at the bill it will kill it entirely.
